

• Collaboration, Co-Teaching and Co-Planning •

Presenter: Jen Patenaude

Maximizing meaningful student access to and management of the general education curriculum is a primary goal of inclusionary education. However, this can be prove to be quite a challenge when teachers face a wide range of learners within their classrooms and rigorous content standards. Service delivery models that maximize collaboration and shared responsibility for student outcomes such as co-teaching, co-monitoring and co-planning can prove to be very beneficial. This workshop will focus on describing these models and the key system considerations for maximizing success. Specific strategies for effective collaborative teaming for a wide range of learners will also be discussed. Participants are highly encouraged to attend in collaborative teams.
