Stoweflake Conference Center

How People Learn: Brain Research and Its Implications for Secondary Transformation

Dr. G. Christian Jernstedt

The TASS Secondary Transformation Conference is geared toward schools that work with students in grades 7-12. The TASS Secondary Transformation Conference challenges educators to transform their thinking about how we educate students in light of what we know about how people learn. Teams will consolidate their learning from Dr. Jernstedt's presentation and identify implications for the transformation work in their own schools. Participants will also come away from the conference with examples of how this information may be applied to the areas of curriculum, assessment, instruction, and professional learning.
